

Learn More About The Stories at www.thebbp.org

If you visit our website at intermission, and again after the show you'll find additional information about the stories you're hearing tonight. The QR code at the right will take you there.

The website also provides information for anyone who would like to reach out for help or assistance with their own personal stories. A certified spiritual counselor is also present this evening if you would like someone to speak to.

The BIG Burly
Project

BURLESQUE = TRANSFORMATION + EMPOWERMENT®

The BIG Burly Project is committed to sharing the art of burlesque as a vehicle to self-discovery, greater self-esteem, and personal empowerment to women who find themselves at a crossroad in life.

In partnership with FIRE, we pledge to seek out financial support, and grants, which will enable us to teach the art of burlesque at low or no cost to women in need, including those recovering from the trauma of domestic violence, cancer survivors, veterans returning from active duty, those who have tested HIV+, MtF trans women, and those others who feel the need for help to complete a postive transformation in their life.

If you're interested in supporting our project, or would like to attend a workshop please visit our website at www.thebbp.org to learn how.

The BIG Burly Project would like to thank the Firehouse Theatre for its support and assistance. With special thanks to Adam B. Ferguson, Associate Producer; and our endless gratitude to Joel Bassin, Producing Artistic Director, for his encouragement and ability to gently nudge us to the obvious next step.

We would also like to thank Lisa Weber, Executive Director of FIRE: Friends Include & Respect Everyone, for her tireless efforts in promoting this production.

Thank you to Deanna Danger, we hope you are proud of how your little burly babies have learned to fly.
